THE WEEKLY NEWS is the cheapest paper published in North Carolina. It is only one dollar per year postage paid, contains 32 columns of plain printed news from every section of the country, and important advertisements. Always Cash.

Our telegraphic columns have been somewhat full of the notices of the insurrection movements in Bosnia, Herzegovina and other places unknown to most of our readers, and having apparently little interest in them. The time is coming, in all probability with great rapidity, when these places will be looked back upon as the kindling fires of a stupendous war in which the Christian is again to be arrayed against the Moslem, to end in the final expulsion of the unbeliever from European soil. For this momentous consideration our readers will bear with the frequent recurrence of barbarous names and unfamiliar places.

THE UNIVERSITY.

While we write the Trustees of the University are in session. The principal object of their present meeting is to hear the report of the committee to examine into the expediency of the immediate election of a President of the Institution, and to act thereon. We do not feel at liberty to speak in anticipation of their action farther than to say that the selection will be in all respects satisfactory.

We are glad to add that the prospects of opening the University with a goodly number of students are encouraging. Certainly not less than sixty will be present within the first week, and probably many more. And as the success of the effort is demonstrated, patronage will flow in, until the paths to the University from all parts of the South will present the old beaten and well trod marks.

THE ROBESON COUNTY OUT-RAGE.

The Radical press are pleased to style the exclusion of Norment and McNeil an outrage. With more reason, the Democrats can call the attempts to give the certificates to these claimants an outrage, because in the attempt all law, precedent and common sense has been violated.

By what law, in the first place, are the Commissioners of Robeson county summoned to appear before a Judge of the Supreme Court in Greensboro to answer for any violation of their duties? Is it not patent to the merest legal tyro that officials of this grade cannot be dragged out of their own county, to dance attendance, at their own expense, upon the whimsical motions of a Judge who really has no jurisdiction in the case? If there is a case against these Commissioners, their right is to have investigation within their own county. And if a case is made up, the Superior Court is the proper tribunal. And apart from the rights or powers of any special tribunal, the Commissioners are beyond the reach of the Courts. They owe no further responsibility. They have performed their parts. They are functi officio, and the contest, if it be made at all, must be made before the body alone capable of deciding upon the question—the Convention itself.

But the programme of the Radical leaders is one of terrorism. They would frighten if they could, the Democrats out of their property by a show of furor and bluster. Experience in revolutionary deeds in the States to the South of us has given that party aptness in all schemes to gain and retain power by lawless measures. The declarations ascribed to high officials here in that party as to the intended course of action are made in time to put the Democratic members of the Convention on their guard. Let them stand firm, and they will find that the courage of the opposition will not be equal to its audacity.

ASHVEILLE.

Situated at a distance of two hundred and seventy-five miles west of Raleigh, hidden behind the ranges of the Blue Ridge and deprived of modern convenience of communication by which all parts of the East are brought in such pleasant proximity, none but those who have visited Asheville, have formed even tolerably correct ideas of its size, its advancement, or its important position.

It is conceived to be a straggling Court House village. It is a large and well built town. It is supposed to be primitive in habits and manners. It contains as much of refinement and cultivation as any town in the State. It is thought to be without trade. Its streets are full of the bustle of traffic as any interior town.

Asheville has grown up to its consequence unknown to the other parts of North Carolina. Its geographical position is somewhat peculiar, identifying it in past years with South Carolina more than with the State to which it belongs. It lies on a natural thoroughfare between Tennessee and South Carolina, the mountains opening into Tennessee at Paint Rock through a natural gateway, and breaking down into South Carolina by more gentle declivities than are found elsewhere on the Blue Ridge. Along this route for a great many years a heavy tide of traffic has flowed, attracting population to the town as well from its commercial advantages as from the beauty of the surrounding scenery and the wonderful salubrity of climate. A beautiful and picturesque looking town of some twenty-five hundred inhabitants has grown up, abounding in tasteful and handsome houses, while no town in the State has in its vicinity so many beautiful residences and country seats, occupying commanding points along the banks of the beautiful Swannanoa, or nestling on the smaller hills under the shades of the loftier mountains.

The situation of Asheville in relation to the rail road system, certain to be developed at no distant day, ensures the expansion of the town into a city of considerable dimensions. It must be the central and diverging point for traffic from all points of the compass. It is the natural and inevitable centre of all the routes of transit through the mountains. It cannot be avoided if it were desired. And to this commercial urgency forcing it into greatness, there is added beauty of scenery which is enchanting in the highest degree, and a salubrity of climate which is wonderful, and which is combined with certain peculiarities which have long since drawn attention to Asheville as a perfect sanatorium. Consumption, as an indigenous disease is unknown, and the peculiar dryness and balminess of the air for some years past has made it the favorite winter resort for invalids from the North and Northwestern States.

Though situated twenty-three hundred feet above the level of the sea, its exposure to the South-west and probably the influence of the currents of air from the Mississippi valley, has much to do in modifying the rigors of winter. The summer climate is the finest almost in the world.

JENNIFER LIND AS SHE IS.—A London correspondent thus describes Jenny Lind as seen at a recent gathering: "She dresses her hair in precisely the same style as when in America, but is slightly tined with grey, and is nearly as full and flowing as of yore. Age has more particularly left its imprint in the shape of crow's feet on her chin and neck, and the corner of her eyes and mouth. She has the same blended expression of firmness and sweetness of temper, the same winning smile and the simplicity of behavior. She was dressed in a dark-colored silk, with a rich India shawl thrown loosely over her shoulders. On her head was a small straw hat bearing a short white plume. She was accompanied by her husband and two lovely daughters, aged about 18 and 20 looking very much as their gifted mother did at their age. Mr. Goldschmidt shows the effect of age and study, his head being bald and shining as a white beam."

UNDER THE FIFTH RIB.—On the Pittsburgh and Meridian Railroad the other day a negro was encountered a colored man who had a familiar look. The negro had his attention attracted likewise, and it was soon ascertained that he was once owned by the planter.

"Yes you once owned me," he remarked, "and I was no better than a hoss. Now I holds an office and is as good as anybody."

"Do you want to do me a favor, George?" I inquired the ex-master.

"I expect so, sah."

"Well, in case you ever tell any one that you hold an office, don't let on that I ever owned you, for with this one exception all my negroes turned out to be respectable people!"

The ex slave didn't do any more boasting.

The victims in the Rochester "baby farm" case lately appear to have been illegitimate infants for what the Doctor calls "the hospitals." A reporter of the paper asked the woman to whose tender mercies the babes were confined: "When the children are brought to you, do not those bringing them, by their talk, expect that they will die on your hands?" The answer was—"Yes, to all the truth, I think they do."

The Detroit Post is a truly loyal Grant paper. The other day it reflected a section of the Republican platform of Minnesota, supposing it to be the Democratic platform, and gave the thing fits.

DR. RANSON.

The Radical papers express the opinion with some freedom that the Democrats display excessive impudence in the claim that Dr. Ransom would act with them. Impudence is the characteristic virtue of the Radicals, and no more glaring exhibition of it is found than in their claim that this gentleman will act with them. The mere fact that Dr. Ransom ran as an Independent is to the Radicals conclusive evidence that he has tied his fortunes to the Radical chariot. This is their assumption.

On the contrary, we have positive assertion to the reverse. We have the statement of Mr. Walker, the member of the House from Tyrrell; the statement of Mr. Hassell of Hillsboro, made on the basis of positive information from the Sheriff of Tyrrell, and now we have the statement of the Windsor Times, made to the editor of that journal by Dr. Ransom himself. We give it below.

We have that faith in the integrity and loyalty of Dr. Ransom that he will not ally himself with a party which already develops its revolutionary tendencies in connection with the Convention, and who will propose so to act as to deny to the East that relief so essential to its peace and which can only be obtained through a Convention acting on the principles which it was called.

We clip the following from the last Windsor Times:

"We are authorized to announce that Dr. Edward Ransom, the Delegate elect to the Constitutional Convention from Tyrrell, is a Convention candidate and will act with the Conservative members. Our authority is derived from the gentleman himself."

SOUND Doctrine.

The Greenville (Ms.) Times has a ringing article on the importance of organizing the Democrats in Washington county, in the course of which the following sound doctrine is enunciated:

"Even though we should not control an office, and our party be restricted to the property holders, we will not say, that we will not, that we will not ally ourselves with the party which already develops its revolutionary tendencies in connection with the Convention, and who will propose so to act as to deny to the East that relief so essential to its peace and which can only be obtained through a Convention acting on the principles which it was called."

UNFORTUNATE REMARK.—The Grand Army of the Republic, of Winnebago, Illinois, in their senseless outcry against Mr. Davis, called him a coward. Whereupon they are remiss by several journals of a similar historic incident. At the battle of Buena Vista Gen. Taylor's left was turned, owing to the bad conduct of Col. Bowles' Indiana Regiment. Then it was that the splendid devotion of the First Mississippi saved the army from utter ruin and capture, while their Colonel's heroism held them to their duty, he, though severely wounded, keeping his saddle and his place at their head, till the day was won. And that Colonel was Jefferson Davis!

TO BUSINESS MEN.

A good advertisement in a widely circulated newspaper is the best possible salesmen. It is salesmen who never sleep and who never weary, who goes after business and late who accosts the merchant in his store, the scholar in his study, the lawyer in his office, the lady in her home, the traveler in the car or boat; a salesman who in no purchase can avoid, who can be in a thousand places at once and speak to thousands of people daily, saying to each one the best thing in the best manner. A good advertisement insures a business connection on the part of the customer of high and moderate prices.

Experience has shown that a dealer, whose wares have obtained a public celebrity, is not only enabled to sell, but is forced to sell at reasonable rates, and to furnish a good article. A dealer can make no better investment than in the advertising columns of a widely circulated newspaper. Such is the opinion of a man who is known to be the largest advertiser in the United States.
